Session Title: Moving Forward: How the RVN can support pets with mobility problems

Fi Marjoram began nursing in 1987 and qualified as a VN in 1989. She worked in veterinary practice for 13 years, during the last year of which she also worked as a veterinary nursing and animal care lecturer at the West Sussex College of Agriculture. Having achieved her first qualification in small animal nutrition in 1991, Fi moved into her first nutritional sales role in 2000 and joined Hill's in 2005. Her current role as Nurse Programme Specialist focuses primarily upon the support and development of veterinary nurses within practice.

Synopsis:

Mobility problems in cats and dogs are commonplace but often not recognised by pet parents. This lecture will give a brief overview of some of the basic support the RVN can offer, alongside the recommendations of the VS, helping pets live longer, better lives.

Learning Objectives:

1. Understand the importance of weight management in pets with mobility issues.
2. Understand the importance of environmental modifications for pets with mobility issues.
3. Understand the importance of nutritional support for pets with mobility issues.
